now such rigid temperance laws as a quarter of a century ago. One-half of the clergymen of Boston were in the habit of drinking wine. Another speaker, a clergymen, thought it disgraceful that out of 200 clergymen requested to take part in the deliberations of the body, only forty had given any reply. Such a condition of affairs would truly be distressing, but for this one fact. The Society is composed entirely of prohibitionists. Prohibition is an acknowledged failure. All efforts at temperance reform based upon the theory of prohibition are wasted. The popular will is opposed to it. To say that the cause of temperance has shown no progress in Massachusetts in twenty-five years is to admit to this, but to accuse the clergy and others of indifference to the prevention of excessive drinking because they have abandoned a theory of repression which experience has shown to be worse than useless, is to display an ignorance and obstinacy worthy of a direct, and lasting value."

The Athenaeum thus advises young men about to marry.

A gentleman who is not a graduate at molding supply a lady so soundly known; tell your hosts they are old and ugly, and have bad manners and conduct; and then, if she asks you for a speech which society has found indispensable to its credit.

Without wishing to be personal, we command the above to our local Rosenstock-Boncouver.

The Scandal City has been at it again. The Rev. Michael Higgins, of Brooklyn, a Catholic priest, has got himself into trouble by a clandestine correspondence with a young girl in a boarding-school, by driving a fast horse, and by embezzling $5,000 of money collected for the erection of a new church. The father of the young girl produced a bundle of letters, told him to step down and out, and threatened to drive him to Brooklyn. The erring divine is "in retreat."

THOMAS DUNFER, who has just been elected Chief-Judge of the Supreme Court of Rhode Island, makes of the Legislature the somewhat remarkable record that before he takes his seat, the entire office, which is worth $5,000 or $1,000 more than the salary of the Justices, may be reduced to $4,500, because, he says, the Associate Justices have almost as much work to do as the Chief Justice, and he thinks that $500 in difference enough between the two. He has delayed taking his seat for the express purpose of making this request, as the salary of the Judge cannot be changed during his term of office, and so the Legislature will be asked to adjourn.

YESTERDAY.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Of all the villainous weather which we have been afflicted, this winter—weather of to-day was, by all odds, its very worst and most intolerable. First, it rained; then it snowed; then it froze; then it rained again; then it snowed again; then it rained again—and so on, as far as the rising of the sun ever to the going down of the same.

AN OPIUMFEST JAIL.

In spite of the rain and snow and freezing of to-day, the vast majority of us have been able to go about as usual. The weather is still very bad, but we are not so bad as to prevent us from getting out of doors.

MONEY AND COMMERCE

Business was seriously interrupted by the storm, and the mails were much delayed.

The packers and Board of Trade men who have started their work again are in full force. The rates of the banks are high, in the case of some of the largest banks higher than they have ever been before in their history. This makes the surplus available for loan small, and the market is, in consequence, firm.

Railroad dividends are 10 per cent to regular customers.

On the street the condition of affairs is much like that among the banks. The present supply of funds is ample for the present wants, which are not far removed from the packers'. Rates are now 10 to 15 per cent, and are paid at a discount of 200 to 300 for money between banks. More exchange is being made by the shipment of provisions, and considerable is offered for sale on account of the demand for money, which is always greater in winter.

The clearing house is closed.

WHOLESALE EXCHANGE.

The excitement in regard to the proposed increase of tax on whisky has caused very large preparations, as far as one can see, for the next few days.

The grain crop has caught the infection and went on the market as buyers of lightwheats. If they could have got away to the south, the situation would be very serious.

The increase that comes seems to be the only real one.

However, the situation has no reason to be serious, as the market is quite quiet. The price of wheat is low.

At the opening of exchange room No. 1, Monday, Nov. 20, per gallon, that was the offering price for wheat, was $1.00, and the same price was offered for flour, excepting that it was $1.00 less.

At the opening of

THE CITY.

MYSTERIOUS SICKNESS.

There had been in this city for some months a man by the name of Wigwam, who, although reared by pious and God-fearing parents, yet let his feet wander into the paths of iniquity, and the pleasant ways of destruction. He gave himself up to evil living, pursuing the dictates of a corrupt and vicious heart, rather than the lessons of his parents. He played cards for money, drank to excess, and was a bold and ardent believer in revelation. He persevered for several years in these evil courses, sinking more and more into the clutches of the demon rum, until most of his time was spent in the gutter or the saloon.

One night, however, he was induced to attend

A TEMPERANCE MEETING, and, becoming penitent of his former conduct, signed the pledge, and joined several temperance societies, vainly imagining that the more of them he belonged to, the more anchored would he be in his new course, and the more aid and support for the poor human soul where alone they can be found, for "he that trusts in his own heart is a fool." He became a constant speaker at these meetings, and would tell all that he was of Talalak, "religion has no place in his heart or house or conversation; all he has left is his tongue, and his religion is a noise there."

He was far in his debauch, and wicked boots as to declare that he never wore out his knees praying:

HE COULD KEEP SOBER WITHOUT GOD, and did not care if God did not exist. God had given him the fearful curse on himself, and hoped that God would wish his right arm if it ever lifted a drop of liquor to his mouth. But it happened to him as to God's Law, once, when he was about to be born, he was anchored to a rock in the sea of life, and the Board of Education by one vote, and the man in whose name that one was obtained was a most disgraceful proceeding.

Then he opened up his platform, and the opposition against him, and has kept out a running fire ever since. As Wigwam has no knowledge of, or experience in, library management, he said that his platform was a failure.

In the past six months he could hardly open a Cincinnati paper without seeing the indignant inquiry, "Why is the Public Library not open?" He has been compelled to publish his books and the circulation has diminished.

The Joint Committees on Public Charities were in session yesterday afternoon at the Committee-room at the County Building. The bill was referred to the Committee on Health, and the bill was introduced and discussed.

The contract for boots and shoes was awarded to Theodore Schulz. The Committee decided that before awarding the contracts for meat, fish, and vegetables, it was important to inspect the bidders in order to obtain some information as to the quality of supplies the bidders propose to furnish at the prices mentioned in the proposals.

A pious man from Letterkenny, Ireland, who came to Chicago about five months ago, and upon whom no one could get a drop of liquor, has been obeying the words of the Feminist. "Blessed is the man that walks not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor sitseth in the seat of the wicked."

It is now known that the man who was the subject of Taylor's comment as among the signs of temperance were not found in Wigwam.

But these blasphemous sayings which he used upon all occasions grieved him, and he therefore sought a place where he might feel off from his God.

Of this man was suddenly attacked by a mysterious and singular disease. He was removed to the hospital, and remained there for two weeks, the closest attention by several physicians; none of them, however, are able to give a satisfactory explanation of the matter. The man is a heavy one, weighing over 200 pounds, brought up to a high state of physical development. Now, however, the right one has shrunk away until it is about the size of that of a 3-year-old child. Instead of the ruddy appearance of flesh, it is now a thin, wan, and pale mass, and hangs like a dead fish. All the hair has come out, and the arm, from shoulder to finger-tips, seems to have shrunk about 4 inches. Electricity has no effect whatever, and there is an apparent insensibility of pain, even on the palms of the hands and under the finger-nails.

Whatever opinion physicians or the irreducible multitude may take of this case, it is therefore evident not a case of paralysis. The doctor and extensive inquiries in every particular have been impossible for Wigwam to lift any weight whatever. The withering embraces both of ear and shoulder. There are no signs of gangrene, and the doctors are at a loss, notwithstanding frank admission of the trouble.

All the hair has come out, and the arm, from shoulder to finger-tips, seems to have shrunk about 4 inches. Electricity has no effect whatever, and there is an apparent insensibility of pain, even on the palms of the hands and under the finger-nails.

And then that the mouth of the scoffers might be stopped, it happened that
